KUALA LUMPUR: The implementation of targeted subsidies for diesel and petrol will be done in three phases once the government has received the completed data for household income through the implementation of its Central Database Hub (Padu), next year.

Economy Minister Rafizi Ramli said while the government has identified several ways to coordinate the targeted subsidies to improve the country's fiscal position, the subsidies could only be implemented after getting the nod from the cabinet following a presentation in November.

"The coordination of diesel and petrol subsidies is planned for 2024, through the implementation of Padu which is expected to be completed in January next year.

"In addition to how the subsidies would be implemented, the engagement plan will be announced after the cabinet's decision is reached through a proposal that will be presented this month (November)," he said during minister's question time in Dewan Rakyat, today.
